ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

My sincere thanks are offered to the American Antiquarian Society for permitting and encouraging me to do this work. Both the Society and the New York Public Library kindly allowed the use of their facilities. Richard S. Wormser gave helpful suggestions and contributed many new titles; other additional titles were listed by the Library of Congress (both Bitting and Pennell collections), Dayton Public Library, Kansas State College, James Gourley, and Mrs. Thomas L. Scruggs.

Finally, and most particularly, I want to thank Walter Goldwater, without whose constant advice and unselfish assistance the work would never have been completed.

PREFACE TO THE REVISED EDITION

The first edition of this bibliography very quickly went out of print, and the American Antiquarian Society was besieged with requests for copies for years. In spite of this pressure, the editors of the Society's publication had to put off the question of a second edition from year to year because of the pressure of previous publishing commitments and the fact that the time could not be spared to visit other libraries to bring up to date the record of their holdings. The problem was solved when Miss Eleanor Lowenstein stepped into the breach, undertook the task of revision, and shouldered the responsibility of this edition.

AMERICAN COOKERY BOOKS

1742-1860

INTRODUCTION TO THE FIRST EDITION

THE literature of American cookery has received little attention from libraries, collectors and book dealers. Most libraries have some books on cookery but very few possess an important number. Private collections are not well known and as a rule more attention has been given, in them, to foreign publications than to American. Occasionally cookery books appear at auction sales but are seldom listed in dealers' catalogues. Considering the importance that cooking has had in human life from the earliest pre-historic ages and that the subject has always been of universal interest, it seems strange that so little attention has been paid to its literature, especially since no subject seems to have created a greater number of best sellers.

In collecting American books on cookery one is at once struck with their almost entire absence during the first one hundred and fifty years of the colonial period. Even foreign publications are seldom found in the remnants of colonial libraries. Perhaps the explanation is that they received such hard usage and were so damaged that, having no intrinsic literary value, they were seldom preserved. Yet when one considers the numerous almanacs, juveniles and other early imprints of little literary merit which have come down to us in tatters and fragments defying identification, one is forced to the conclusion that few if any books on cookery were imported and that American housewives relied on manuscript recipes and on memory. The earliest American imprint on cookery known, a reprint of an English work, is dated 1742 and no work by an American author has been found of earlier date than 1796.

No complete bibliography of English and other foreign cookery books has been made but private collections of them exist both in Europe and America. The earliest list of English books noted is in the introduction to the third American edition of Dr. Kitchiner's "Cook's Oracle," dated 1825, which names 201 publications dating from 1518 to 1820. W. Carew Hazlitt in his "Old Cookery Books and Ancient Cuisine," London, 1902, lists or describes seventy-eight cookery books published in England previous to 1800 and twenty after that date. Mrs. Elizabeth Robins Pennell in "My Cookery Books," Boston, 1903, tells in an interesting way of her own collection of foreign cookery books, and follows with a bibliography which describes one hundred and seventeen titles, including six Latin, twelve Italian, twenty-one French, four Spanish and seventy-four English imprints, all published before the nineteenth century and owned by herself. She prefaces this with the statement that she does not aim at an exhaustive bibliography but "attempts nothing more ambitious than a list of my own books and even that within limits." It is a valuable compilation as far as it goes, but it is to be regretted that the accomplished authoress did not attempt to make it more complete, especially as to the English publications.*

The bibliography and check list of American Cookery Books here presented is the result of an attempt, begun several years ago, to make a comprehensive collection of all the British and American imprints on the subject. In the absence of any complete bibliography it was impossible to foresee how large an undertaking this would prove to be, but it was not long before it became evident that the United States alone furnished a sufficiently large field for such a collection, and the fact that the American Antiquarian Society, to which it was the ultimate intention to present the collection, limited its library to Americana, also made a limitation to American imprints desirable. The time limit of the collection to the year 1900, first adopted, was later extended to 1914, the beginning of the World War, when the publication of cookery books increased exceedingly. Wars seem to have a stimulating effect on this class of literature as well as on others. The American Civil War had a similar effect, but unfortunately at that time, substitution of wood pulp for rags in the manufacture of paper caused a great deterioration in the quality of the paper used in books intended for popular consumption. Cookery books increased in number but decreased in bibliographical value in the matter of printing, paper and binding. This and other considerations led to the selection of 1860 as the time limit for this bibliography.

In a search for titles the important libraries in the east have been visited, and their possession of the several imprints is noted under their initials, of which a list is appended. A few private collectors have also furnished titles but these are all classed under the letter P, meaning private collections. The writer's own collection is credited to the American Antiquarian Society, to which it is transferred with the publication of this bibliography, and the copies belonging to it are indicated by an asterisk attached to the initials of the Society. The combined collection contains 292 of the 490 titles listed.* The next leading collection contains but eighty-seven.

* This was written before the publication of Bitting's "Gastronomic Bibliography" (1939). Oxford's "English Cookery Books to the Year 1850" (1913), and Vicaire's "Bibliographie Gastronomique" (1890), ought also to be mentioned.

It is hoped that the publication of this bibliography will lead to the discovery of many titles not now included because no copies have been found. It is felt, however, that the field has been well covered. A few titles have been listed which contain little cookery and perhaps more properly belong to the general subject of domestic economy. The inclusion of Joel Barlow's poem, "The Hasty Pudding," may be criticized, but as it describes quite meticulously the preparation of this once popular and quite important dish, from the growing of the corn to the proper way of eating it, its admission seems not improper. The fact that it went through many editions not all of which are elsewhere described is an additional point in its favor.

—WALDO LINCOLN

AMERICAN COOKERY BOOKS

1742

1. The compleat housewife; or, accomplish'd gentlewoman's companion: being a collection of several hundred of the most approved receipts, in cookery, pastry, confectionary, preserving, pickles, cakes, creams, jellies, made wines, cordials. And also bills of fare for every month in the year. To which is added, a collection of near two hundred family receipts of medicines; viz. drinks, syrups, salves, ointments, and many other things of sovereign and approved efficacy in most distempers, pains, aches, wounds, sores, &c. never before made publick in these parts; fit either for private families, or such publick-spirited gentlewomen as would be beneficent to their poor neighbours. By E. [Eliza?] Smith. Collected from the fifth edition.

Williamsburg: Printed and sold by William Parks. 1742.

16mo. pp. (12), 228, (12).

AAS.

First published in England in 1727. The only copy found is bound up with "Every man his own doctor." Williamsburg: 1751.

1747

2. A present for a servant maid: or, the sure means of gaining love and esteem. To which are added, directions for going to market; also, for dressing any common dish, whether flesh, fish, or fowle. With rules for washing, &c. The whole calculated for making both the mistress and the maid happy. [By Eliza Fowle Haywood.]

Boston: Printed and sold by T. Fleet at the Heart & Crown in Cornhill. [1747.]

[12mo.]

This book is advertised in The Boston Evening Post for August 24, 1747, with the title as here given, prefaced as follows: "This day is published, (and sold by Rogers and Fowle in Queen-street) one of the most useful books of the kind extant; necessary to be had in all families. Proper to be given by Mistresses to their maids, or parents to their daughters." Evans gives it a slightly different title, credits the authorship to Eliza Fowle Haywood, the printing to Rogers and Fowle and calls it a 12mo. No copy placed.

1752

3. The compleat housewife . . . [Full entry No. 1]. Collected from the sixth edition.

10. The compleat housewife: or, accomplished gentlewoman's companion. Being a collection of upwards of six hundred of the most approved receipts in cookery, pastry, confectionary, preserving, pickles, cakes, creams, jellies, made wines, cordials. With copper plates curiously engraven, for the regular disposition or placing of the various dishes and covers. And also, bills of fare for every month in the year. To which is added a collection of above 300 family receipts of medicines, viz. drinks, syrups, salves, ointments, and various other things of sovereign and approved efficacy in most distempers, pains, aches, wounds, sores &c. particularly Mrs. Stephen's medicine for the cure of the stone and gravel, and Dr. Meade's famous receipt for the cure of a bite of a mad dog; with several other excellent receipts for the same, which have cured when the persons were disordered, and the salt water fail'd; never before made publick; fit either for private families, or such publick spirited women as would be beneficent to their poor neighbours. With directions for marketing. By E. [Eliz?] Smith.

[New York: Hugh Gaine. 1764.]

This book is advertised with three others, in the New York Mercury for January 30, 1764, No. 641, as follows: "The following books are just published, and to be sold at Hugh Gaine's book-store and printing-office, at the Bible and Crown, in Hanover Square . . ." Evans gives it a similar, but shorter title, omitting the publisher. No copy found.

1772

21. The hasty pudding: a poem in three cantos. Written at Chambery, in Savoy, January, 1793. Omne tulit punctum qui miscuit utile dulci. He makes a good breakfast who mixes pudding with molasses. [By Joel Barlow.]

[New Haven: Printed by Tiebout & O'Brien. 1796.]

8vo. pp. 15, paper.

AAS. BU. CHS. NYHS. NYPL.

This has generally been called the first edition. An advertisement on the verso of the title page is dated: New Haven, April, 1796. A manuscript entry in the Connecticut Historical Society's copy, by an unknown person in a contemporaneous hand and faded brown ink, says: "New Haven, printed by Tiebout & O'Brien, 1796." The book is advertised in the Connecticut Journal (T. and S. Green, publishers) of May 11, 1796, as "reprinted and sold at this office." Whether the advertisement refers to this or the following edition has not been determined. If to this it contradicts the manuscript entry quoted. The poem was first printed in the New York Magazine, January, 1796, pp. 41-49.

1811

50. Galateo; or a treatise on politeness and delicacy of manners: from the Italian of Monsig. Giovanni de la Casa, Arch Bishop of Benevento. Also, the honours of the table. With the whole art of carving; illustrated with a variety of cuts. "To do the honours of a table gracefully, is one of the outlines of a well-bred man; and to carve well, little as it may seem, is useful twice every day, and the doing of which ill, is not only troublesome to ourselves, but renders us disagreeable and ridiculous to others." Lord Chesterfield's Letters.

Baltimore: Printed for George Hill. B. Edes, printer. 1811.

24mo. pp. xiii, (1), (15)–274. Illus. Copyrighted 1811. AAS.

51. The hasty pudding . . . [Full entry No. 24]. (Caption title, followed by eight opening lines of Canto I.)

[New Haven? 1811?]

12mo. pp. frontis., 12, engraving, paper. Illus. NYHS. YU.

The two engravings are by Amos Doolittle. Internal evidence and the following advertisement from the Connecticut Journal of July 25, August 1, and 8, 1811, seem to indicate that this and the following title were published at New Haven in 1811, the publisher, for some reason, not wishing to assume the responsibility:

"Hasty-pudding, with Plates, Bowls and Spoons, now ready for supping at the Bookstores, and at the Post-Office

There are who strive to stamp with disrepute

This luscious food, because it feeds the brute."

The two lines of verse are from Canto I of Barlow's poem. Note the use of the word "plates." Bowls and spoons also appear in the frontispiece.

52. The same.

[New Haven? 1811?]

Contains receipts for cooking and pickling.

89. Five thousand receipts in all the useful and domestic arts, constituting a complete and universal practical library, and operative cyclopaedia. Mr. Hobbes of Malmesbury, thought the accumulation of details a hindrance of learning; and used to wish that all the books in the world were embarked in one ship, and that he might be permitted to bore a hole in its bottom. He was right in one sense; for the disquisitions and treatises with which our libraries are filled, are more often merely the husks and shells of knowledge; but it would be to be wished, that before he were permitted to bore in his hole, some literary analysts should select all the facts, recipes, and prescriptions, useful to man, and condense them into a portable volume. 329. Hand-book of wines, practical, theoretical, and historical; with a description of foreign spirits and liqueurs. By Thomas McMullen. Knowledge is indeed as necessary as light, and in this coming age most fairly promises to be as common as water, and free as air. But as it has been wisely ordained that light should have no color, water no taste, and air no odor, so knowledge also should be equally pure, and without admixture. If it comes to us through the medium of prejudice, it will be discolored; through the channels of custom, it will be adulterated; through the Gothic walls of the college or of the cloister, it will smell of the lamp.—Colton.
